Marriage a Problem.

The question of the prince's marriage is now becoming quite a serious one. The king and queen both agree that their son ought to marry early in life, but King George and Queen Alexandra, as well as her sister, the dowager Empress of Russia, strongly oppose this idea because of the close relationship of the two young people. They favor a marriage with one of the daughters of the King and Queen of Italy, who are easily the two most beautiful and healthy princesses in Europe, probably because of the blood of the sturdy Montenegrin peasants which they have inherited from their mother's side

The result is apt to be a compromise for there is much talk in court circles of Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, daughter of the Roumanian crown prince, as the most likely next Princess of Wales. No one has thought of asking the prince, who will, of course, meekly submit to the choice of his parents.
